The Usual Thing in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Nov 11 --The inside history of political matters is beginning to come out. E A Burke, the newly elected state treasurer was also a candidate for the U S senate and an arrangement was made to give him more control of the city debt amounting to $3,000,000 On this condition he agreed to withdraw from the senatorial contest The Democratic municipal ticket was made and put up by E. A. Burke John Fitzpatrick and J D Houston. The citizens' association held a meeting to-day and sent a committee to Governor Nichols to lay before him an abstract of frauds which have been perpetrated at the recent election. Their summary of testimony is extremely full and so overwhelming in fact that the governor asked two of the committee to ascertain whether there is anything in the law authorizing him to nullify the municipal election and order a new one The other candidate for the federal senate is Duncan F Kenner who will probably be elected provided it is thought that under the new arrangement E A Burke can capture the $1,000 000

Arrested for the Murder of Mrs. Barry

SAN FRANCISCO Nov 11 --Mike Sullivan arrested last night on the charge of murdering Mrs Barry near Lone Mountain on Friday last was to day examined by the police authorities in the chief's office The result shows Sullivan to be an old offender He has been in this state for some 12 years and a good picture of him was found in the rogues gallery On April 17 1871 he was convicted of grand larceny in Yuba county and sent to San Quentin for two years During his incarceration he was found guilty of the same offense in Alameda county, for which he got a year and a half On his own statement he has been three times in the Stockton insane asylum once from San Francisco once from Yuba and once from Sacramento He also served forty days in the county jail here in 1869 for petty larceny Sullivan made conflicting statements concerning his movements since the murder To morrow search will be made for the missing clothing belonging to Barry in second hand stores and pawn shops

The chain of circumstantial evidence against Sullivan is now believed by detectives who have had the case in charge to be complete With the discovery this morning of the clothing stolen from Mr Barry's house the following additional circumstances pointing to the guilt of the prisoner were brought to light On the afternoon of the murder a man who now proves to be the prisoner disposed of a dark coat and pants stolen from Barry's to Mrs A Cooper whose husband keeps a second hand clothing store at No 1 0 Pacific street Mrs Cooper gave him in exchange a light pair of pants and half a dollar A Levy of 134 Pacific street and Mrs Dora Hertz, of 108 Pacific street, were present at the time of the trade, and when Sullivan was brought to Cooper's store this afternoon they identified him positively as the person who had sold the clothing When confronted with these witnesses, Sullivan acknowledged in their presence as well as in that of Capt Lees and officers Jones and Meagher that he was the man that had sold the coat and pants. It has also been ascertained that Sullivan after making the exchange at Cooper's store where he took off the pants that he had taken from Barry's house and put on the light pair that he obtained from Cooper's then went a few doors below to a second hand clothing store at No 116 Pacific street, kept by Julius Circle Here he offered the light pants that he had obtained from Mrs Cooper in exchange for a pair of old overalls and four bits The trade was made and Sullivan donned his new garment and left The prisoner was also taken to this store this afternoon where Mrs Circle and her daughter identified him as the man who made this exchange When visiting the clothing stores this afternoon he did not deny while talking with Capt Lees about the tragedy, that he was the murderer He declared however that he would not tell any policeman anything about it, but would tell the story when he came before the court

THE ROBBERY AND MURDER CASE

DECISION OF [illegible] ON THE DEMURRER OF DEFENDANTS TO THE INDICTMENT IN THE [illegible] STATE CIRCUIT COURT

State v. Archie Brown, Jane Johnson and Joseph [illegible] ards

This [illegible] indictment for murder

To [illegible] indictment Brown and Sward by their attorney demur upon the grounds--1st that the indictment charges more than one offense and that the indictment is insufficient in law to constitute [illegible].

Section 6 of the criminal code provides that the indictment must contain a statement of the acts constituting the offense in ordinary and concise language without repetition and in such manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended The indictment in effect charges the accused with the murder of Louis Joseph committed while they were engaged in a robbery and committing by the act of shooting at and attempting to kill a murder [illegible] Sprague The fact of the assault upon Sprague while it might be made the ground of a criminal charge against the accused [illegible] in this indictment It is here employed to describe the alleged murder of Louis Joseph It is merely a statement of the act by which the alleged murder was accomplished--in other words a statement of the act constituting the offense charged If the state expects to prove the assault upon Sprague as an act by which the killing of Louis Joseph was accomplished it is necessary that such act should be set forth [illegible] order that the accused may know what is intended

Upon the second ground of this demurrer namely that the indictment is insufficient in law to constitute an offense two important questions are presented The [illegible]

First--Is a purpose or intent to kill an essential ingredient in the crime of murder when the murder is alleged to have been committed while in the commission of robbery burglary arson or rape?

Second--Where there is an intention to commit deliberate homicide and an unintended person is killed, is such killing murder within the statute requiring a purpose to kill In other words when there is an intention to kill must the particular person killed be the one intended

The statute upon which this indictment is drawn is as follows If any person shall purposely and of deliberate and premeditated malice or in the commission or attempt to commit any rape or robbery or burglary kill another such person shall be deemed guilty of murder in the first degree

It is argued by counsel for the accused that the word purposely which qualifies the word kill in the latter part of the sentence applies to both classes of homicides mentioned in the section

In the case of Robbins vs The State (8 Ohio State Rep 131 this construction is given to a statute similar to ours That case is relied upon by counsel as an authority to sustain this demurrer The Ohio statute under consideration in that case is as follows If any person shall purposely and of deliberate and premeditated malice or in the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate any rape arson robbery or burglary or by administering poison or causing the same to be done kill another every such person shall be deemed guilty of murder in the first degree The language of the statute is the same as that of ours with this difference The clause in the Ohio statute consisting of the words or by administering poison or causing the same to be done follows the clause which excepts murder committed in the perpetration of robbery rape arson or burglary In that case the indictment was for murder committed by administering poison The question of statutory construction is discussed in the opinion of the court at length and with much ability There is great force in the argument in its application to the case under consideration by the Ohio court Two of the five judges composing the bench--Swan and Brinkerhoff--dissented from the opinion

The case was afterwards affirmed in the same court--one of the judges dissenting The rule of construction here applied has not obtained in any other state so far as I have been able to find The language of the statutes of most of the states being less favorable to such construction than that of the Ohio statute The statute of Indiana and possibly some other states being similar. And the fact is significant that in nearly all of the states either by unequivocal statutory enactments or judicial construction, it is the settled rule that a homicide committed in the perpetration of rape robbery arson or burglary is murder without the additional ingredient of a purpose to kill By the common law a homicide committed in the perpetration of any felony is murder in the first degree--no express purpose to kill being necessary to make the offense of that degree Our statute must be construed in the light which is afforded by this universal sentiment and with reference to this established rule of the common law

In the case of Robbins vs. The State the opinion is placed principally upon the narrow grounds of statutory punctuation and grammatical construction If we apply the same strict rules of punctuation and grammar to the case before us a somewhat different result will be reached--the subdivisions of our statute being different from those of the Ohio statute The first clause or distinct subdivision of the sentence in the latter statute consists of the words That if any person shall purposely &c Omitting the clauses that intervene between the first clause and the verb in the closing part of the sentence and the sentence will read as follows That if any person shall purposely kill &c The first clause in the statute of this state consists of the words That if any person shall By omitting the intervening clauses as in the other case, it will read as follows That if any person shall kill The rule of syntax that where an antecedent adverb in the first clause qualifies a verb in the closing part of the sentence forming the predicate of the subject of several distinct intermediate clauses of the sentence, such qualification of the predicate applies to the subject of each of such intervening clauses, unless some word or words are used expressly limiting it to a part is relied upon in the case of Robbins vs The State By that rule the word purposely being an antecedent adverb in the first clause, is made to apply to the subject of each of the intervening clauses and hence to the clause which relates to robbery rape arson and burglary But in the authoritative punctuation of our statute there is no antecedent adverb in the first clause and the rule of construction, upon which so considerable a part of the argument in the case of Robbins vs The State is based, loses its force in the case at bar If indeed it is not become applicable to establish a different construction

The strict rules of grammatical construction as interpreted and applied in the Ohio case do not in the case of our statute make a purpose to kill an essential ingredient of murder where the killing is effected in a robbery arson burglary or rape. But the construction of statutes is not allowed to stand upon such narrow ground

The punctuation of a statute is work done by the draftsman the engrosser or the printer In the legislative body the bill is read and so apprehended by the ear and not by the eye, which alone takes cognizance of punctuation, therefore the punctuation is not to be regarded in the interpretation of the enactment (Bishop on Stat Crimes § 78

It is a doctrine based upon authority and reason that all provisions of law statutory and common at whatever several dates established are to be construed together as contracting, expanding enlarging and attenuating one another into one harmonious system of jurisprudence (Ib) If there is an ambiguity in our statute it must therefore receive that interpretation which makes it most in consonance with the common law and with those statutes of different states relating to the same subject

As bearing further upon this subject I quote from Bishop on Stat Crimes § 1[illegible] From § 88 the same work I quote as follows But the common law is as much to be taken into account in construing a statute as is a previous statute enactment Therefore as we have already seen statutes in derogation of the common law or of a previous express enactment are to be construed strictly not operating beyond their words or the clear repugnance of their provisions that is the new displaces the old only as directly and irreconcilably opposed in terms For when the legislative power professes to add a provision, as it does in the enactment of an affirmative statute we cannot assume for it an intention also to subtract a provision while there is any well known rule of interpretation which applies to one or to both will enable both to stand "

Where the language of the statute is capable of two constructions one consistent with the common law and the other having the effect to set it aside that construction which effects the least change in the common law will be adopted The rule of construction is under the authorities the same as that by which a prior statute is allowed to stand if a subsequent statute upon the same subject can be so fairly interpreted as to permit it and yet give effect to such subsequent statute

The rule is thus stated by Blackstone When the common law and a statute differ the common law gives place to the statute and an old statute gives place to a new one * * * But this is to be understood only when the latter statute is couched in negative terms or where its matter is so clearly repugnant that it necessarily implies a negative But if both acts be merely affirmative and the substance such that both may stand together here the latter does not repeal the former but they shall have a concurrent efficacy (1 Bl Com 89 to)

This rule of construction bears upon both questions under consideration namely that which relates to the killing of an unintended person in an attempt to kill a particular person and that [illegible] homicide committed in the perpetration of one of the four felonies named in the statute

[illegible] common law if a person intends to do an [illegible] felony and undesignedly kills a man it is murder

Our statute provides that if any person shall purposely and of deliberate and premeditated malice or in the commission or attempt to commit any rape arson robbery or burglary kill another such person shall be deemed guilty of murder in the first degree

It is clear that the legislature intended to change the rule of the common law so that any killing committed in the perpetration of one of four particular felonies instead of one committed in the perpetration of any felony should be held murder in the first degree

As to this the statute is plain unambiguous and certain (And this change is as already stated mitigation of the common law) It is not to be presumed that the legislature intended to make so radical a change in the common law rule by using words of doubtful meaning Nor will a technical construction of words or ambiguous phrases be allowed under the authority just referred to, to repeal the common law by implication any more than the court would be allowed to so repeal a prior act of the legislature

[illegible] are not required to say whether or not permitting [illegible] beyond [illegible] legislature can [illegible] existing law by construing a statute [illegible] the law which such word was [illegible] the law to stand

By the common law the intent to kill need not be proved if the killing was done in the commission of a felony The intent and the malice are irresistibly implied from the [illegible] Is our statute capable of a construction that will permit this rule to stand? May it be fairly interpreted so as to give effect to this universal and [illegible] rule of law It is then in every [illegible] consonant [illegible] to the so construe it [illegible] the effect of such a construction in any particular case

By the proposed rule of construction the killing [illegible] the intent to kill [illegible] Without the intent the killing in such case adds nothing to the guilt of the accused Without such intent the crime would only be of the degree of manslaughter, and yet by the statute manslaughter is a crime of a lesser degree than either arson robbery burglary or rape And in the moral turpitude that accompanies them and in their consequences to society these offenses are of a more serious character than manslaughter On the other hand an intentional killing without the ingredient of robbery arson rape or burglary is under the proposed construction a crime of as great degree as though the ingredient of one of these four offenses was added

Swan J in Robbins vs the State [illegible] dissenting from the opinion relied upon to sustain these in dictment said

As is here stated every evil intent and purpose [illegible] the irreversibly implied in one who engages in either of these high crimes These crimes are of such exceptional enormity that the complications are warranted [illegible] admission of robbery arson rape or burglary is from the nature of the case peculiarly dangerous to human life The man who engages in them does so with a knowledge of this fact. He is presumed to intend such consequences as are liable to result from the act It is therefore a rule founded in reason and natural justice which the introduction by implies an intent to take life where one with a vicious purpose engages in a criminal act peculiarly dangerous to life and resulting in homicide

It is argued in the case of Robbins vs. The State that if both the purpose to kill and malice be dispensed with as elements of the crime when it is committed in the perpetration of either of the felonies named the statute in that case would impose the punishment of death if a man should kill his dearest friend by administering to him when sick a deadly poison under the mistaken supposition that it was a curative medicine There is much force in this. If a consequence so manifestly absurd and contradictory to common reason results from one of two interpretations of the statute there is ground for presuming that the legislature did not intend that construction from which such absurd consequences would result and when to this consideration is added the fact that in the Ohio statute the word purposely is placed in the first clause of the sentence it would seem that the opinion in the case of Robbins vs The State has much in grammatical construction and reason to support it But neither of these considerations apply to the present case In this state the killing of another by poison must be purposely done to be murder in the first degree and no conviction for murder in the first degree can be had unless a vicious motive--a criminal intent--can be shown

It is claimed in this case that § 506 which defines murder in the first degree Section 519 provides that there shall be some other evidence of malice to constitute murder in the first degree, unless the killing was effected in the commission or attempt to commit a felony

It is argued that from this exception in respect to malice it follows that all the other ingredients of murder including a purpose to kill must be shown in any case According to this the fact that the killing was done in the commission of a robbery rape arson or burglary simply dispenses with proof of malice But § 506 dispenses with premeditation and deliberation in all such cases in express terms and it therefore follows that § 519 can have no such application in the construction of § 506 as is contended for Section 519 simply provides a rule of evidence by which malice shall be proved in those cases where malice is not implied

In giving a construction to a statute the whole act and its parts are to be considered, as well as all other statutes in pari materia and if any section be obscure or doubtful its meaning is to be ascertained by comparing it with other sections.

The code has provided forms for indictments for murder of either class under the section under consideration and it has provided that the manner of stating the act constituting the crime, as set forth in the forms shall be sufficient in all cases where the forms are applicable In the form provided for murder committed in the commission of rape burglary arson or robbery, the word purposely does not appear while in the form provided for murder otherwise committed it does appear The appendix of forms and the statute relating to it were acts of the same legislature which enacted the section under consideration These forms thus afford an opportunity of discovering the intention of the legislature As was said by the supreme court of this state in the case of The State v Dodson (4 Ore 65) the body of the criminal statute and the appendix seem to have been considered by the legislature as component parts of the same statute, and the appendix has been for several years invariably treated by the courts as a part of the statute.

Assuming however, that an express purpose to kill is necessary when the killing is effected while in the commission of a robbery arson rape or burglary and the indictment in this case having alleged that the killing of Louis Joseph was accomplished by the act of shooting a Sprague with the intent to murder Sprague is the indictment sufficient with reference to the allegation of a purpose to kill

1st Is the word intent used in the indictment sufficient to allege a purpose to kill Sprague

2d Is the purpose to kill Sprague sufficient to charge the accused with murder in the killing Louis Joseph, such killing having resulted from the attempt upon Sprague?

In the usual acceptation the word intent and the word purpose convey the same meaning The meaning of each is a design resolve or determination of the mind and it has been held that the words with intent as used in the indictment sufficiently express the meaning of the word purposely as used in the statutory definition of murder (Carder v The State 17 Ind 307

As to the second proposition there is some conflict of authority It has been held in Tennessee (10 Humphreys 103) that there must be a specific intention to take the life of the particular person slain and this doctrine is favorably commented upon in the case of Robbins v The State (10 Ohio 38)

In Pennsylvania it has been held that where there is an intention to commit a deliberate homicide and an unintended person is killed it is murder in the first degree

In the state of Nevada in a case recently decided the same doctrine is held State v Raymond 11 Nevada 98 And this is the well established doctrine of the common law with reference to which as has already been shown our statute must be construed

If a man intending to commit a murder shall by some mischance kill a different person than the one intended upon what principle of natural justice or reason shall such mischance operate to his advantage The vicious intent and the injury to society which results from the killing of one of its members are the same as though the murderous blow had fallen upon the particular person intended Here is both the criminal purpose and the fatal result Shall the assassin who lurking in ambush shoots and kills the unsuspecting passer by escape the grave charge because his nerves failed in their aim or his eyes mistook the person killed for another Is not the moral turpitude of the act as great? Is not the injury to society as great as though the particular person intended had been killed Does the fact that the intent is specific as to a particular person render the life of that person more sacred in law than that of another It is in accordance with natural justice and right reason that when a man goes forth with a deliberate purpose to commit a high crime, he shall be presumed to intend such consequences as result from that crime that the criminal purpose with which he went forth shall be incontrovertibly implied from all of the consequences which attended that crime This is the common law this is common sense

In this state penal statutes are not to be strictly construed and it is provided that all the provisions of the code are to be construed according to the fair import of their terms with a view to effect its objects and promote justice. The ends of society require that the statute be interpreted and enforced according to the fair import of its terms and that its substantial ends be not defeated by a technical [illegible] it

TUESDAY MORNING NOV 12 1878

FRESH MEATS TO EUROPE

Shipment of fresh meats from America to Europe began as a business in October 1[illegible] This was an important era in the development of the resources of our country. The report of the department of agriculture recently published, furnishes a full account of the methods and extent of the business. The process of cooling and caring for the meat is simple: refrigerators are arranged so that currents of air from ice are driven through them; hooks are adjusted so as to allow the cool air to circulate freely between the quarters and the ice boxes are provided with drainage allowing the water from the melted ice to escape thereby reducing the tendency to melt. Under these arrangements the meat is transported uniformly in good condition.

The principal shippers have agents in the west who select cattle and forward them direct to eastern yards where they are slaughtered and where refrigerators have been constructed to keep and prepare the beef before transferring to the steamers. It has been found profitable to ship only heavy animals. The average weight of cattle sent abroad is 800 pounds. So far the larger part have been obtained from Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri and Kansas. Many, however, have been sent from the far west—some from Idaho, Washington and Oregon. No Texas cattle are ever sent to the foreign market; they are too light in the quarters and do not find profitable sale.

The business requires the most attentive and skillful management as the margin for profits in these foreign shipments is very close. Last year, when beef was worth in the New York market 9 to 10 cents a pound by the carcass it was bringing on the other side of the Atlantic from 11 to 13 cents. When the market on the other side is glutted with meats the prices are forced down to a much lower figure and occasionally American beef has been sold at heavy loss to shippers. When a dollar is made on each carcass it is considered a satisfactory and paying profit.

Mutton bears transhipment quite as well as beef, if not better. But it is well known that American farmers except in comparatively few instances, have not yet learned to appreciate a breed of sheep with their mutton qualities as a most important basis for profit. The English are somewhat nicer in their choice of sheep for mutton than we are. Not all, indeed, are as fastidious as DeQuincey, who required a particular piece of mutton of a particular kind carved in a particular way. But it has been found that only nice compact carcasses with plump backs and thick loins sell well in the English market. The report before us pronounces the Downs the best mutton sheep, and after them the Cotswolds. A cross between the Merino and Southdown is said to be a good mutton sheep. A portion of Merino blood of at least one fourth is asserted to be essential in the sheep for the great plains, and here the American shepherd can multiply his flocks so cheaply that he may defy the competition of the world.

For American fresh meats France also affords a considerable and growing market. Shipments have not yet been extended to Germany to any noteworthy amount. As yet, indeed, Germany is shipping live cattle to England, and is a competitor with the American producer.

The commissioner concludes that in regard to the shipping of American beef and mutton to Europe, this grand enterprise can be made an enduring certainty, if the farmers and graziers of this country will sufficiently extend and improve the business of growing cattle and sheep, as they possess advantages which the English farmers do not and cannot have. Most of the latter pay an annual rental for the use of the lands they occupy equal per acre to the actual cash value of farms in many of our most important states.

DIVISION BY STATES

Politicians are speculating on the chances of the respective parties in the presidential contest of 1880 should the election go to the house of representatives for decision. The Republicans in that event, would control the following named states:

Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont and Wisconsin—18.

Democratic states in the house will be these:

Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware and Ohio—18.

Florida is divided, one Republican and one Democrat being elected to the house, which would neutralize the vote of that state.

The only remaining state is California, which will elect members of the house of representatives in September next. There are four districts in the state. At present the members are equally divided. At the last election the Republicans carried three of the districts, but the partisan majority in the house unseated one of their members and "elected" a Democrat in his place. In case the presidential election should be thrown into the house California will decide unless her next delegation be equally divided. The contest for a majority of the districts in California will therefore be a sharp one. But it is not very likely that the election will devolve upon the house. The third party will amount to nothing and one or the other of the two great parties will pretty certainly have a majority in the electoral college. Should the Republicans carry in 1880 the states carried in 1876 they would have the electoral college by a great majority.

There are two states,—Ohio and Oregon—ranged on the Democratic side in the vote by states whose electoral colleges the Democrats cannot carry. And there is another—Indiana—which upon a straight contest they may lose. It has been going Democratic of late because the National party has been recruited mainly from the Republicans who in that state have hitherto tried to dodge the financial question instead of meeting it boldly—a folly they will never commit again. The National party so-called will cut no figure whatever in the presidential election. Its brief day is run.

Senator Mitchell, it appears, has been romancing again. On the 20th ult. he told the Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Mail that had he been home two weeks in advance of the meeting of the legislature he would have been re-elected and as it was he came within twelve votes of an election in a Democratic legislature. The audacity of these remarks raises them above the reach of comment. We leave it to the partisan organs of Democracy to reflect upon the sublime assurance with which Mr. Mitchell assumes that he could have captured their legislative majority had he been home two weeks earlier, and to all whom it may concern the declaration that as it was he came within twelve votes of an election. The record shows if we mistake not that he got two votes out of ninety after failing utterly to obtain a caucus endorsement from the Republican minority. On the whole therefore, a reasonable doubt may be entertained as to his coming so near a re-election. But his remarks doubtless were intended for the east, and not for Oregon and, as he is soon to retire from the senate he may be employing these methods to commend himself to the administration for a consulship.

The Philadelphia Press alluding to the gab of partisan orators about the "deadly influence of corruption which pervades the government," asks wherein the evidence can be found to support this slander. It says: "Who can point to corruption in the administration of national affairs? The truth is the general government is more economically and faithfully administered than any government on earth, and the figures showing the proportion of collection to expense prove it. Besides there are a thousand defalcations in private life to one in official life. We venture to assert as the result of close observation that within this generation the government has never been as purely administered as it is to day. The same is true of the state governments generally without regard to politics." This probably is true as a general remark, but to every rule there are exceptions. It is not probable that any one who is aware of the facts would point to Oregon as an example of "pure administration" for eight years past.

It is now claimed that Brents has carried every county in Eastern Washington. Columbia considered good for Caton is reported as giving Brents 60 majority. Whitman and Klickitat add largely to his plurality and it is probable that on official count he will have above 1,000 majority.

Mess Mabie, Todd & Co

Gentlemen

I have sent one of your pens to have a point mended, through Mess Hooker, dealers of this city.

You may like to know that I have used this pen constantly for more than twenty years, from the days of a book you called "The Autocrat of the Breakfast table" 1857-8 until last Friday without intermission, always with perfect satisfaction. I have written with it half a dozen or more volumes, a large number of Essays etc and thousands of letters.

I feel to it as to an old friend and I hope you will do the best you can for it. Perhaps I have in the meantime bought another of your make "Corrugated marked C."

I do not know whether you care for this testimonial, but I feel as if the pen which has carried out so much of my thought and brought back so much in various forms in return was entitled to this certificate of honorable desert.

Yours Gentlemen very truly

Oliver Wendell Holmes

We have sold the above Pens for the last 8 years, and they are more popular to-day than ever.

CITY.

CAPT BAUGHMAN'S TRIAL —The following is from the Pendleton paper of the 9th The trial of Capt Baughman for the killing of Paul Whalen is over It has been the principal topic of conversation on our streets since the commencement of the court Some ill informed people had concluded that he (Baughman) was guilty, as charged in the indictment, never stopped to think that only one side of a case is ever presented to a grand jury The jury impaneled in the case was among the most prominent citizens of Umatilla county The state exhausted all their challenges in the case, while Baughman challenged very few, leaving a margin of five or six if he had wanted to avail himself of technicalities. We are satisfied that the witnesses gave their testimony fairly Sometimes it seemed as though some would like to convict for vengeance, instead that the rights and liberties of defendant should be respected though we are as we said before satisfied that what they swore to was the truth as they understood it. Capt Baughman after having passed through the ordeal of a trial comes out unscathed, the jury declared he did his duty nothing more In the discharge of his duty Whalen was killed He is exonerated from all blame by a jury of his countrymen and we cannot help but congratulate him in having been tried by a good honest, sensible jury

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH —The Telegram of last evening says Sunday a boy aged about 9 years, the son of Mrs Barnes a widow, who lives in the upper part of the city was the victim of a painful and dangerous accident, the result of carelessness while playing in the new cathedral building The workmen engaged on the building have arranged an equipoise elevator with a fall of 60 feet, to raise heavy building materials One of the platforms had been raised to the top of the building before the men left on Saturday night and was left in this position While little Barnes and two companions, both older and larger than himself, were waiting yesterday for the commencement of the Sunday school session, they amused themselves by playing in the building, and finally all got on the upper platform of the elevator which was carried to the bottom by their weight at a lightning rate The two larger boys were not injured, but the little fellow's head came in contact during the fall with a projecting beam, and was frightfully cut just above the back of the neck He was taken into the house of Mr McDevitt, near at hand and after a while became conscious and was taken to his home It is thought he will recover

HEAVY FALL —About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon Mr T M Richardson, the well known contractor, met with a very severe accident at the new Catholic church, corner of Stark and Third streets While employed at the front end of the building, he lost his balance and fell from the scaffold on which he was standing to the top of the iron door frames, a distance of some fifteen feet or more One of Mr Richardson's thighs struck violently against the sharp and ragged edge of the iron and was lacerated in a very shocking manner Just as he struck the sharp corner of the iron frontings a small piece of timber fell from the scaffold and falling on Mr Richardson head, inflicted a painful gash Immediately after the accident Mr. Richardson was conveyed to his home and surgical aid invoked Although of a painful and severe character, his injuries are not regarded as necessarily fatal

HEATERS —Four heaters to be used in connection with steam fire-engines arrived here on the steamer City of Chester These heaters were brought from Cleveland, Ohio, and were ordered some time ago by the common council. One of these heaters was for Linn Engine No 2 at Albany and the other three for the department of this city—for Willamette Engine No 1, Columbian Engine No 3 and Tiger Engine No 5

ORGANIZED —A private note from Yamhill county states that W R Dunbar G W C T on the 8th inst., at Dayton, Ogn, organized a Lodge of I. O. G. T E G Pendleton, W C T, Mollie Hill, W V T, C H Pigott, W S, Mollie Shipley, W A S, Rev S Heinin ... W C Prof L H Baker P W C T and John T Watson lodge deputy The lodge starts with thirty-nine members

OPENED —The special attention of the trade is called to the opening of Rosenbaum & Friedman at No 71 Front street, next door to Alexander Bros The grand liquidation sale began yesterday Go and examine the splendid assortment for yourself Mr Krebs who has charge is a polite and accommodating gentleman, and will show goods with pleasure.

IN SERVICE —The steamer Bonanza was brought down from the W. T & I Co's boneyard Saturday, and will go into active service on the Willamette at once She takes up the entire fixtures of the Oak Point flouring mills purchased by parties in Marion county, for a mill recently erected near Ankeny's landing on the Willamette river

GREAT REPUBLIC.—A dispatch from San Francisco yesterday to Mr Ingalls, the agent at this place, states that the steamship 'Great Republic' arrived there at 4 P M She will sail for Portland next Saturday morning

SERVANT GIRLS —A gentleman who advertised in THE OREGONIAN for a girl was so overwhelmed with applications that he was obliged to discontinue the "ad" Evidently there is a surplus of hired help

AT MELBOURNE.—Mr John Jack the well and favorably known actor was playing at Melbourne, in the character of Sir John Falstaff, on the 19th of August

AT WALLA WALLA —Geo E Cole, Esq our genial and accommodating postmaster is at present sojourning at Walla Walla for the benefit of his health

AMUSEMENTS.

The magnificent tragedy of Henry VIII by Shakspeare was produced at New Market theater last night Miss Dargon appearing in the role of Queen Catharine She has a correct conception of the piece and carefully carried out the spirit and sense of the author The support was "conditionally good" A large audience a considerable increase on that of Saturday night—was present This proves that legitimate and first class performances will receive good support in Portland The same piece will be repeated to night.

FINE SCENIC EFFECTS —Mr Wm T Porter, the clever scenic artist has painted several very fine and appropriate scenes which are used in the play of Henry the VIII These scenes are very handsome and contribute greatly to the effect of the play Aside from the superb and queenly acting of Miss Dargon and the excellent support the scenes alone are well worth the price of admission Those who went last night to witness this play and were delighted with its presentation will not deny themselves of the pleasure of witnessing its production to night.

C B Plummer will give an entertainment at Odd Fellows hall East Portland Wednesday evening 13th

FIRE AT HILLSBORO

Large Warehouse and Quantity Grain Destroyed—Sure Incendiarism

The large warehouse belonging to Mr. L L Williams at Hillsboro was destroyed by fire Sunday night There was stored in the building between 7000 and 8000 bushels of grain belonging to the farmers in the vicinity John Wethered and Jacob Hoover are the heaviest losers by the fire Probably one sixth of the grain stored was saved There was no insurance except on the building and that for only $400 in the New Zealand Insurance company All the wells in the immediate vicinity were emptied in order to save the adjoining buildings and the steam mill The fire was certainly the work of an incendiary as the flames were first seen to flash up suddenly from the roof There was no stove used about the warehouse, and no combustible material stored there

SCOW BAY TRAGEDY.

Under date of November 5th, our regular correspondent sends the following from Port Townsend

The mystery surrounding the murder of Mr and Mrs Hight still continues to engross public attention here and seems likely to remain a mystery until the conscience of the assassin asserts her rights and brings him to justice Since my last report the Indian witnesses mentioned have been examined and testify that they were camped on the beach near old man Clawson's house on the night the murder is said to have been committed that they heard a canoe or boat coming across Oak Bay after dark that the men who were in it numbering two (they think) were singing as if in great glee and pulling to the shore pretty fast that they were coming from the direction of Scow Bay that after they landed they entered Clawson's house

One of the Indians testified that he and another Indian (examined afterwards) were in the vicinity of Hight's house on the evening of Friday October 18 and heard a woman's screams about dark and immediately after a shot was fired then followed the barking of dogs and the crying of children in the house This was about 6 P M but the Indians do not seem to have thought much of the matter and did not enquire into the cause of the shooting

The prosecution here rested and counsel for defense commenced by calling Peter Clawson prisoner's father) to the stand and examining him in regard to the weapons now in evidence Identified the Springfield musket said his son Andrew used it last Identified double barreled shotgun Testified that the prisoner and Dan Thomas had worked till about 4 P M on Friday 18th ult getting out logs etc then they had gone across the bay after a boom stick that they returned about ... P M bringing the stick with them witness went down after supper and helped to tie up the boom stick saw the Indians on the beach near his gate the prisoner Clawson and Dan Thomas slept at his house and the other prisoner Davison, in the barn on that Friday night

Andrew Clawson son of the last witness a boy of about twelve years was next called and testified that he stopped at John Scott's on Friday Saturday and Sunday Oct. 18th 19th and 20th had the shotgun with him there loaded it after the murder with duck shot hurt his hand in loading it which might have caused the blood spot seen on it the gun and dirk knife were carried to Mrs Scott's room, Springfield rifle identified as the property of witness father loaded it with pieces of lead cut off a piece of lead pipe could not identify the load taken from the musket

John L. Fincheler jailer testified to the manner in which the load was taken from the musket considers that the force used would flatten the lead so that it would not look the same as when put in the gun might have been loaded some time

May Clawson sister of the prisoner called Was washing at Scott's the time of the murder Identified the apron with blood spots on it as hers Accounted for the blood by saying that her little sister had fallen and hurt her nose and the blood was the result the boy Andrew's gun was at Scott's on the 18th ult

Thos Bishop was examined to prove that the prisoner Clawson tore off the sleeve of his shirt the Sunday before the murder, and put it in his pocket [The sleeve was produced in evidence was spotted with blood It did not seem to match Clawson's shirt at all]

Joseph Davison (the Indian prisoner) examined have been working at different camps around made my home mostly at Peter Clawson's was living there when arrested was there about three weeks worked on Friday Oct 18th till 4 P M in the woods with Chas Clawson his father and Dan Thomas After 4 P M went across Oak Bay after a boom stick and towed it home arrived home about 7 or 7 30 P M went to the house for supper and hauled up the boat and tied the boom stick went to bed in Clawson's barn with Willie Williams remained at Clawson's next day was not on Hight's premises on Friday or Saturday do not know who perpetrated the murder saw the bodies after the murder took four or five minutes to chop down a small log when we went for the stick, rowed across in about 30 minutes got the stick into the water in three or four minutes took perhaps one hour and a half to row back to Clawson's, am sure we were over 30 minutes, but am not sure we were over 40 minutes coming back [This should have brought them back at the very outside by 6 P M] landed near Clawson's barn I pulled the oars was singing as we came back and laughing had no firearms with us did not notice what time I went to bed, Friday was a fine day heard of the murder first on Sunday after it was committed The boys from Chimacum who were visiting at Clawson's ran to Hight's when they heard of the murder Dan Thomas Chas Clawson and myself did not go there till after dinner A crash towel with blood on it was shown to witness and identified as his said that his nose was in the habit of bleeding and he had wiped it on this towel [A pocket handkerchief with blood was identified by witness as his] Said he had cut his leg some time previously and had bound it up with this handkerchief [Overshirt identified by witness as his also, blood spots accounted for as having come from a sore on his hand]

On cross examination witness admitted that the pistol which was found in his valise was a dangerous one from the fact that the explosion of one cap sometimes caused the discharge of all the barrels at once without the other caps exploding

[One cap on the pistol seems to have exploded but whether the other barrels are loaded now I cannot say —REP]

Willie Williams a boy of 14, was called for the defense The witness seemed very intelligent and corroborated the statements made by previous witnesses generally

Mrs John Scott called Identified the boy Andrew's shotgun Both that and the dirk knife now in evidence were at her house Friday and Saturday of the murder

Mrs. Peter Clawson identified the Springfield musket as her husband's. It was not out of the house that Friday or Saturday

This closed the evidence for the defense and the counsel were given until to morrow (Saturday) to prepare their arguments

EPISCOPAL CONVOCATION

This convocation re-assembled at 9 o'clock on Saturday the 9th Morning prayer was said in Trinity church and the business of the convocation taken up immediately after.

The first thing in order was the report of the committee on Christian education The report showed that the diocesan schools St Helen's hall the Bishop Scott Grammar school and St Paul's girls school Walla Walla—are in a very flourishing condition St. Helen's has over one hundred pupils twenty of which are boarders The Grammar school has ... fifty scholars ... attendance at St Paul's Walla Walla is better than ever before ... encouraging and improving ... though but one year has elapsed since the burning of the ... institution is now ... out of debt and has far better appointments ... had before the fire The cost of the new buildings as at present arranged ... about $9000

The committee on the Oregon Churchman reported the condition of that paper—income etc —and moved that the paper be hereafter published in Portland and by a practical printer This was passed and pledges made to sustain the cost of the new enterprise The paper will be published during Christmas week or by the first of January in a somewhat changed form and it is thought in an improved manner

The committee on the state of the Church reported that the parochial statistics show an increase of communicants over last year's report of at least one hundred There have also been more baptisms and more confirmations The offerings have also been larger Quite a number of new Sunday schools were reported ... Canyon City Butteville Eugene Weston and the Dalles Altogether the church has made considerable progress notwithstanding the fact that a large number of churches have been ... during the year ...

The discussion of these points and the best way of doing the church's work was animated and can not have failed to arouse more enthusiasm in the hearts of all present

A vote of thanks to the different railroad and steamboat companies for issuing tickets to the clergy at reduced rates was passed and also to the parish of Trinity church for their kindness in entertaining and caring for the convocation

The doxology was then sung, prayer offered and the convocation adjourned sine die

The work of the convocation did not close however until Sunday evening At the service in Trinity church on Sunday morning Rev Mr Lancaster ... deacon was advanced to the priesthood In the evening a missionary service was held, and addresses were made by the bishop and Rev Messrs Wells and Able Large and attentive congregations attended these services and attested their interest by contributing liberally at the offertories By these collections the bishop was enabled to add $25 each to the Christmas and episcopal funds, and to meet the expense of the convocation

We hope and believe that the interest aroused by these meetings in church work, will remain and show itself in more hearty support of the work in the future

The excellent photo work that Davidson Brothers are turning out proves that while they have much the lowest prices, they do not intend the quality of their pictures to be excelled They make cards for $1 50, and cabinets for $3 per dozen

REMOVAL —Edwards & Birmingham have removed their stock of furniture to the spacious warerooms over their former place of business in Centennial block, and are opening out a splendid assortment of furniture which they offer at very low prices Call and be convinced

For the benefit of suffering humanity I deem it my imperative duty to make known to the public what has been done for me by Dr C M Wood Having been subject to dyspepsia for some 12 or 14 years, and continuing to grow worse until about four months ago, when it ran into chronic diarrhœa and assumed a very dangerous condition—so much so that I found I would be compelled to stop my duties or find some relief and having seen one of Dr Wood's circulars I concluded to consult him and finally to be treated by him for one month the result of which I give in a few words I feel that I am as sound as I ever have been and that so far as my disease is concerned I am perfectly cured JOHN R CURRY

DR. P. M. BRENAN.

His Wonderful Success

IN THE TREATMENT OF ALL

Chronic and Difficult Diseases,

He has astonished the People of this Coast by his skillful Operations.

HE HAS TAUGHT IN HIS public and private lectures the true principles of health and life to both male and female. He has also warned them against habits that would be likely to produce disease, in plain and comprehensive language. But where he has found them crushed and broken down by disease, mentally and physically, he has restored them to health and happiness, for it is well understood that without health there can be no happiness.

has made a specialty in the treatment of the following diseases: Catarrh, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the throat and chest, by an entirely new system only known to himself, Diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs, including Spermatorrhea, Seminal Weakness or premature loss of Manhood. In the treatment of these diseases he has made a world-wide reputation by his astonishing success, not only on this Coast but throughout the whole United States. Diseases of the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys as well as all diseases of the blood and skin he has become master of, and never fails to give relief at once, and permanently cures the case if he is applied to in time.

THE DOCTOR HAS GIVEN SPECIAL LECTURES to ladies only for years and is perfectly familiar with all female complaints, and understands their delicate and refined organization, as well as the proper remedies which should be used to allay their suffering and restore them to perfect health.

THE DOCTOR HAS THIS ADVANTAGE

over most physicians—he can tell the patients' disease the moment he comes in contact with them without any aid from the individual. This accounts in part for his great professional success.

All surgical operations can be performed by his skillful hand, and the patient need not fear the result.

will send to those living at a distance and who cannot well visit his office a list of Printed Questions and by the answers when filled out he can tell the disease as well as the proper treatment almost as well as seeing the patient, personally, and will forward the proper medicines, or instruments, to any part of the country with full instructions and advice. Each letter requiring advice or list of questions, must contain two postage stamps.

Everything strictly confidential and honorable.

THE DOCTOR

has studied in the best Medical Schools in Europe and three years in the Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia, as more than one of the Medical men of the Medical Faculty in this State can testify.

CAUTION.

Persons coming to Portland, requiring medical treatment of the proper kind, who desire to consult with me, will please beware of persons who may try to coax them away to other so-called Doctors, through pretended friendship for the patients. Look out for them; they are knaves, prompted by selfish motives and what they can make. Be sure and ask for DR. PAUL M. BRENAN, the Medical Lecturer, and read his sign on his door.

Office, 63 First street, over McCormick's Franklin Bookstore.
